

Welcome to KPR i-Services

Based in Reading, KPR i-Services provides business solutions such as online stores , content driven cost effective web sites and other bespoke solutions on a UK wide basis using open source software. If you are considering moving online or already have an online presence that is not performing as you expected then contact us for honest and impartial advice on the business solutions open to you. If you want a web site that you can update and change without getting expensive code modifications then contact the open source experts at KPR i-Services Ltd.

KPR i-Services specialises in the following areas:

- Cost Effective web sites based on a Content Management System. This means that the you, the customer, can update the web site with recourse to expensive programming effort. KPR i-Services provides all the infrastructure including hosting and technical support. Usually we can also provide customers with a development or self-teach web site at little or no extra cost. Our product of choice is Joomla which is very stable and loaded with features.
- We also supply other open source products such as community orientated environments where your customers can interact with you and each other. This can range from a guestbook through a blog to a full-blown forum. These can be standalone applications added to an existing web site or integrated with a CMS system.
- We are happy to supply and install e-commerce products such as OsCommerce or Zen Cart but our preference is to us a low cost product called ClickCartPro as, in our opinion, it is much more secure and stable than any open source offering. We are now shipping mainly CCP6.0 solutions but can still supply CCP5.1 where its particular functionality suits the customer requirements.
- We have also developed solutions for freelance photographers using a combination of Coppermine & ClickCartPro and can also interface Joomla and Coppermine.
- There is also a low-cost solution for affiliate magement again using a combination of Affiliate Manager and ClickCartPro.
- Automatic Customer communication using newsletters and autoresponder technologies.
